

New York's electronics recycling law makes it illegal for consumers to throw so-called "E-Waste" in the garbage. Violators can be fined $100. The law requires electronics manufacturers to finance a system of collection and recycling for state residents. Best Buy stores accept most electronics from consumers for recycling. Some at no charge and some for a fee regardless of where the product was purchased. The Salvation Army, Goodwill Industries, and Staples also accept consumer electronics.

More information on New York's e-waste law is on the DEC Website

Robert Wright Disposal will still pick up E-waste and large items (recyclable or not) for an additional charge. Please call 439-3376 for details.

The following E-Waste IS NOT accepted in your curbside trash and recycling receptacles.
